About El Pasoans

Mrs. Otis Chalmers is expected to leave her former home in Rome, Ga., for El Paso Saturday afternoon.

Her Tuesday afternoon visit with her friends in the Georgia city for the first part of the summer season.

While in Rome, where she was a social leader before her marriage, Mrs. Colles was the recipient of a number of beautiful parties, including a daisy party which was given for her by Miss Letitia Johnson, who was Mrs. Colles's house guest here during the winter season.

The Rome, Ga., paper has the following to say of Miss Johnson's party for Mrs. Colles:

"At Rio Vista this morning Miss Letitia Johnson will entertain at bridge in honor of Mrs. Otis Chalmers, of El Paso, Texas, who is pleasantly remembered by Romans as the beautiful Miss Elizabeth Colles."

"A color scheme of white, gold and green will be artistically carried out in every detail. Daisies, white petals and golden hearts, with foliage of green are used in prodigious profusion."

The table cards are daintily decorated with hand painted daisies.

The refreshments will be served to the guests gathered around the large dining table, which is a study in white, gold and green. The beautiful color motif being artistically carried out in the daisies, effectively arranged to form the centerpiece, the place cards, individual daisies standing with the names of the guests at the table, and glass with the fillings of gold, and rare old family china in white and green."

When the opening of the Panama celebration at San Francisco in 1915 is celebrated by the "Temple of Childhood," it is the hope of the United States and the countries of the world that official recognition and honor will be accorded to the children of the period by the exhibition of a world's characteristic of the child life of the world.
